Organization seeking suppliers:

Formed in 1952, Organization A grew internally and through acquisitions until the early 1990s, when it sold nearly all of its divisions. Beginning in 1995, the company expanded those two core defense businesses by purchasing other shipyards and combat vehicle-related businesses. In 1997, to reach a new, expanding market, Organization A began acquiring companies with expertise in information technology products and services, particularly in the command, control, communications, computing, intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance (C4ISR) arena. In 1999, the company purchased Organization B, a business-jet aircraft and aviation support-services company. Over the past 10 years, Organization A has acquired and successfully integrated 43 businesses, including three in 2006. Organization A focuses on creating shareholder value while delivering superior products and services to military, other government and commercial customers. The company emphasizes excellence in program management and continual improvement in all of its operations. Organization A values ethical behavior and promotes a culture of integrity throughout all aspects of its business. This culture is evident in how the company deals with shareholders, employees, customers, partners and the communities in which it operates.

Organization is the industry leader in global mobility and workforce development support to Organizations worldwide. Our global client base includes corporate, government and membership Organizations of all sizes and types. Our broad base of services supports both managers and transferring employees with cost-effective, customized services.

What buying Organization is buying and type of supplier who should respond:

Organization encourages the recruitment, training, and qualification of minority- and women-owned businesses. We identify minority- and women-owned suppliers, and orient those who are not familiar with Organization as to who we are, what functions we perform, and what we expect from our suppliers. This includes assistance through a mentor program for those suppliers who seek opportunities with Organization but are unfamiliar with our business methods. Organization expects each level of subcontractor to participate in our program. We expect our first-tier subcontractors (brokers, appraisers, inspectors, and closing agents) to be active in seeking out and utilizing second-tier subcontractors and report that utilization to Organization on a regular basis. Any independent contractor qualifies (which, in the case of real estate broker firms, generally includes individual agents who operate as independent contractors). For more information, review the Recognized Certification Agencies and complete the Certificate of Compliance form and return to the fax number indicated.

Organization seeking suppliers:

Effective July 1, 2008, Organization A separated its Organization B from its remaining business by means of a redemption of each outstanding share of Organization A– Organization B common stock in exchange for one share of common stock of Organization C, a Delaware corporation that holds all of the businesses, assets and liabilities previously attributed to Organization B. As a result of the separation, Organization B is now a separate, independent, publicly-traded company whose common stock is listed on the NASDAQ Stock Market. Also effective July 1, 2008, the name of Organization A was changed to Organization D following the separation. The new name will not result in any change to Organization D’s common stock, which will continue to be listed on the New York Stock Exchange.
